Alistair Macnaughton Speaks on Panel at FOW Derivatives Tel Aviv

Tel Aviv, Israel - This afternoon, Mulvaney Capital Management's Chief Legal Officer Alistair Macnaughton (far right) joined a distinguished panel of Israeli and international fund managers to discuss managed futures.

Managed futures, or CTA, strategies are widely used in the USA and enable institutional investors to generate uncorrelated returns across a spectrum of trading strategies and access exposure to global commodities markets. Yet in Israel, the use of managed futures and investment in commodities remains relatively underdeveloped.

Mr Macnaughton and the panel explored the concepts of managed futures, systematic and fundamental investment approaches, and the diversification benefits that managed futures can give to Israeli institutional investors' portfolios.

Futures & Options World's inaugural FOW Derivatives Israel brought together the local asset management and wider professional trading community for a day of discussion and debate on the key issues facing the industry today.
